PREFACE.

READER,

H I S Collection of Miracles was intended as an Appendix to the School of the Eucharist, and to let the Hereticks know further, that if the Papilts pleafe they can trump up Miracles to prove all their other Doctrines, as well as that fingle one of Transubstantia-

Nay, they have out-done their own Busines in that kind, for Non. they have employed Miracles against one another, to prove the contrary Points of Doctrine which are amongst themselves : So that the World has not only been filled with Roman Catholick, but, for instance, with Dominican and Franciscan Miracles. For to paß by the Tragedy of Jetzer which is of elder date, it is well known how the Pullets Eggs in the Canarics have been of late years both Maculists and Immaculists, and have been found in quite contrary Stories. For when the Franciscans were baffled in their other Arguments, they betook shemselves to this last and most unanswerable Method of Confuting their Adversaries, and accordingly one of them brings an Egg to the Bishop of the Canaries, which was well attested to be found in a Pullet's Neft, with an Infeription of Letters which feemed to grow in the Shell of it, That the Virgin Mary was Conceived without Original This Miracle stunnied the Dominicans for some time; but al-Sin. ways fet a Priest to catch a Priest, for by that time the Dominicans were Virtuosa's sufficient to prepare one, They also had a Pullet's Egg out of the Neft with the quite contrary Infcription upon it : And if the Bi-[hop had not put a stop to these Proceedings, no body knows where their Miracles would bave ended. The Truth of this Story is fo well known to the English Merchants who have of late been in the Canaries, that for the substance of it I will refer my self to the Spanish Walk upon the Exchange, and I am fure I have not willingly varied in any Circum-

The PREFACE.

But will any man of common Sense call such Forgeries, as all these are, by the Sacred Name of Miracles ? Or entitle the little Cheats of Priests to the Almighty Power of God? No surely; for not only every Christian has a surer Word of Prophecy to give beed unto, but also every Natural Man bas a better Light to guide bim, than to be imposed upon by Lying Wonders. For as for Obrifians, it is a first Principle with them, That if an Angel from Heaven teach any other Gospel than what they have received from Christ and this Apostles, that Angel is a falfe and accuried Spirit, and not to be believed ; And with mere Natural Men it is an undoubted Axiom, That God cannot deny bim(elf, nor work any Miracle which is Inconfiftent with his own Divine Nature : So that if any pretended Miracles to atteft such Doctrines as are contrary to the plain and express revelation of Scripture, and to the unchangeable Nature of God, we are able at the fuft fight, both as Men and Christians, to pronounce such Miracles to be falle and counterfest. Upon both of these accounts we are fure that the School of the Eucharift is an hear of Forgeries, which are not fit to be endured either by Men or Christians. For the Doctrine of Transubstantiation, in behalf of which God is said to have wrought all those amazing Miracles, is expressly contrary to Scripture, which teaches us, That Christ's Body is a true Humane Body, in Humane Shape and Proportions: Whereas Transubstantiation quite contrary makes no more but a little Breaden Apparition of the felf fame Body, and will force us to believe, That it is in the form of a Crumb of Bread. Again, all Miracles wrought in behalf of Transubstantiation, are wrought to Prove, That both the sides of an infinite number of Contradictions are True ; But as we are men we are infallibly certain, that it is Impoffible for both fides of a Contradiction to be True : From whence we are alike certain, That it is Impossible for the God of Truth to set his Seal to Transubstantiation, that is to say, to such a number of Fallhoods.

The fame may be shown in the other Points of Popery, as Invocation of Saints and Angels, Worship of Images, Worship of Relicks, or Dead Mens Bones, Prayers in an Unknown Tongue, &cc. which are downright Contradictions both to the Doctrine of Scripture, as also to the Principles of Natural Light, and the everlasting Notions which we have of God. But because Purgatory is the matter which lies before us, I shall chuse rather to instance in that.

Trid. Ca. And I. The Popish Dostrine which says, That amongs the Recerech. Sub ptacles or Apartments of Hell, there is a Purgatory fire where-Artic. with the Souls of the Godly being tormented for a limited time symbol. are cleansed from Sin, that so they may have a passage into their descendit ad Inferos Eternal Country into which no unclean thing shall enter, is plainsect. 5.

The PREFACE

p mother Goffel; for I obsilinge all the World to flucture me where our Saorder or bis Apofiles bave. Presolved any fuels Coffeel: Nay, is is a contrary Goffel, for it flands in a direct and diametrical opposition to the principal Dostrines of Christianity, as has been largely and learnedly fleurn by Dr. Sherlock in The Second Part of his Prefervative against Popery. So that if the Papifts had fourty times more Miracles than they have for the establishment of Purgatory, yet while we are Chriftians we must reject both it and them as Forgeries and Fallpoods.

2. As we are men we are able to fhew the fallhood of that Doctrine, and confequently of all the Miracles wronght in behalf of it. For let men call an old Heathenish Poetical Fiction by the Name of an Article of the Catholick Faith, the new Name does not alter the nature of the Thing, nor make a Fiction to be a Truth.

F (half therefore examine Furgatory as a Doctrine of the Poets, but by no means as a Doctrine of Christianity, and confider what a wife Heathen would have faid to it. And I. He would (ay, That to suppose she Souls of the Godly to be an unclean Thing, is a contradiction in terms ; for an unclean Soul is an ungodly Soul. z. He would (ay, That Fire is no means of purging away the Defilements of a Soul, nor can a spirisual subfinice be chymically prepared for Heaven. 2. He would make work with their contradictious Charity in Praying for Souls out of Purgatory, in groing Alms and faring Masses to belp them out, when yes they fedfaffly believe with a Divine Faith, that those Souls were sent thither in parpofe for their good, and that if the punifhments of Purgatory be not necessary for their entrance into Heaven, they went thither in 4. Though he were a very Philosopher, he would smile as vain. much, to think how one man's Alms or Aves (hould fupply the place of a surging Fire and refine another man's droß, as he would to think how one man's taking Phylick frond make another man Well. In fort, be would think of this Doctrine, and of all the Maracles which support it, as be ought to think.

This is a fure way of judging concerning all other Popilh Miracles, even of the great Xavier's, which the Author of the Pulpit Sayings, p.21. brags to have gained credit amongst Protestants themselves. But for certain those Protestants had never read Xavier's Persic Gospel, translated as I remember by Ludovicus de Dieu, for then they must have concluded, that God would never give his Letters of Credence to such a faise Apostle, nor employ his own Almighty Power to gain belief to such an heap of Fallhoods as there is, yea though they be mixed with some Truths, for the Devil himself never spoke all Lies.

The PREFACE.

It is easie to apply this Rule, which can never fail, to all the Miracles in this following Collection, which are such as cannot be reconciled with Christianity, nor the natural Notions which we have of God. God and Nature do nothing invain; But can any thing be more vain and fortive than those Matches of Mirasles, which we have p. 32 and 44? Where Omnipotency is employed to less purpose, than the Capping of Verses betwixt two School-boys, or than if one of them should stand to blow out a C- dle, while the other blew it in again. And if those Miracles which passed betwixt St. Molva and St. Modoc, p. 44. have any meaning at all, they tend only to confirm the Doctrine of Abstaining from Meats; which Doctrine has but a very bad Character, I Tim. 4. 3. and therefore those Miracles are undoubted Impostures. For the Doctrines of Devils shall never be confirmed with God's Miracles.

But every Reader is able to judge for bimfelf, which of these Miracles are to no purpose, and which are for the Priest's purpose, and to make the Popish Pot boyl, as the Fire of Purgatory plainly is; which are for the bonour of the Saint , and the dishonour of God ; which are fit to enslave men's minds, and which are fit to widen their Belief, that they may the more eafily swallow the Mysteries of Popery; and in a word, which of them serve best for these Superstitious and Antichristian Ules, which the Church of Rome knows very well how to put them to. And therefore I shall only take notice of one single Miracle, but it was a Breeder and bad a great many more in the belly of it, and that is the Staff of Jelus, which Justus the Hermite was ordered to deliver to St. Patrick, of which you have an Account p. 42, 43. New I only ask, Whether the Christians (aid their Creed that Morning, when Jesus Christ had lain all Night at J ftus's Cell, and when he delivered to him the Staff ? For at that time either the Article of his fitting in Heaven, or elfe his delivering of the Staff, and ascending afterwards into Heaven, was not true. And I defire some Romish Priest to tell me which it was.

Roman-Catholick Authors.

The Hiftery of a Man, that having experienc'd the Pains of Purgatory, chose much rather to suffer the Miseries of Humane Life, for many Tears together, than Three Days Torments in Purgatory.

"E read in St. Antonin, that a Man who had been extremely debauch'd, was visited by God with a long and painful Sicknefs. As he was a great lover of his Pleasure, and his Distemper putting him as it were upon the rack, he at length loft all Patience, and earneftly befought our Lord, that he would fend Death to him. An Angel appeared to him, that offered him the choice, either to continue fick as he was two Years longer, or spend three Days in Purgatory. This Man being only fensible of his prefent pain, preferr'd three Days in Purgatory, before a two Years fickness. But hardly had he been an Hour in those Dreadful Flames, but that the fame Angel came to visit him there, and askt him in what condition he found himself. Ah! he answer'd, you have deceiv'd me; For I was to have been but three Days in Purgatory, and whereas I have now been feveral Years here. No, the Angel retorted, I have not deceived you. But it is the violence of your pains, that makes you think the little time you have been here fo long. Ah! for God's fake, reply'd he, do fo as that I may again return into life; For I am ready to fuffer all the pains of my Diftemper, not only during two Years, but as long as it shall please God to afflict and punish me. He obtain'd what he required, and never after did he complain of the pains he endured, Le Pedag. Christien p. 508. How 11

How a certain Holy Person was induc'd to Pray for Sonis in Purgatory,

A Holy Man, call'd Bestrand, a Provincial of the Order of St. Dominique, faid Mafs daily for the explation of his own fins, without troubling himfelf with offering it to God for the repole of Souls in Purgatory. Being one dayaskt the reason of this, he answer'd, That those Souls were fecur'd of their falvation, and by confequence, that they had lefs need of Prayers than the living. The Night following a dead man appeared ten times to him, knocking his hand against his Coffin, and making a shew as if he would maul him. Which possible's dhim with fogreat a fear, that he role up betimes in the Morning, and went to fay Mass for the Dead; and all the rest of his Life he spent in procuring by all forts of means their ease and delivery. Pedag. Chreft. p. 512.

The Account of a Man in Purgatory, for neglecting to Pray for the Dead.

In the Year 1541. a holy religious Prieft, of the Order of Systematics appeared after his Death to a Novice, who pray'd for Min. and told he was in Purgatory, because he had been negligent in praying for the Dead. Pedag. Chreft. p. 513:

A Virgin, after having been in Purgatory, and Heaven itself, returns upon Earth, for the good and Conversion of Sinners.

ST. Chrifting, a Virgin, and Native of St. Throw in Hashaye, being dead, her Soul was convey'd into a place, where they fuffer'd fuch horrible torments, that fhe thought it to be Hell; but an Angel affur'd her; that it was only Purgatory. From thence fhe was carried into Heaven before the Throne of God, who left it to her choice, whether fhe would remain eternally with the Bleffed in glory, or be re-united to her Body, to labour for the deliverance of thole Souls which fhe had feen fuffer fuch dreadful Punishments, and afterwards return into Heaven, there to receive the Grown which fhe had merited by her good Works. She took this laft courle, and at the fame inflant fhe re-entred into her Body; which was laid publickly at that time in the midft of the Church, while they were faying Mass. From that time this Saint perform'd fuch rigorous Penances, and fuch amazing Mortifications, that the juftly acquired the Sir-name of Admirable. Le Pedag. Chreft. p. 513.

The Thanks of the Dead, for the Prayers of the Living.

ST. Liebert, Bilhop of Cambray, one day praying in St. Nicholas's Churchyard, in the fame City, for those that were there enterr'd, and with great devotion faying this Verfe, which the Church fo often fings: May the Souls of all the Faithful that are Dead reft in Peace; a Voice was heard in the Air, that answer'd chearfully and diffinctly, So be it. Le Ped. Chreft. p. 514.

A Person that devoted his Whole Life for the Redemption of the Dead.

J Ean Ximenes, of the Company of Jelus, a religious Man of extraordinary Vertue, praying for the Dead on the day of All Saints, before the Image of the Immaculate Conception of our Lady, heard a Voice that faid to him, Ximenes, remember you the Souls that are in Purgatory. Which fo fenfibly affected him, that he offer'd to God for them all his Mortifications, all his Good Works, and generally all the Acts of Vertue, whether Interior, or Exterior, that he was to do from that time till death. Le Pedag. Chreft. p. 515.

St. Thomas Aquinas his Purgatory Expeditions.

CT. Thomas Agumas, faith the Reverend Father Ribadeneyra, in his D Flowers of the Lives of Saints, was wont to demand three things of - Almighty God with great Inftance: The first was force to serve him without ever relenting in that first Primitive fervour wherewith he . had undertaken his fervice. The fecond, that he would be pleafed to keep him always in the humble and poor condition of a Religious state, which he had made profession of. And the third was, - that he would reveal unto him, what ftate his Brother Arnold was in, whom the Emperour Conrade had put to death, because he fluck to the Party of the Church. All which three things our Lord granted him in ample manner. For he gave him Grace to perfevere in his fervice until death in his Religious Order, with great fancity; and he revealed unto him in a Vision, that his Brother was in the flate of Salvation; our Lord recompencing the Death which he was put unto for his Service and for the Defence of the Church. His Sifter, that had taken a Religious Courfe, appeared once unto him, whill he was praying, and told him, that the was in Purgatory, demanding the Affiltance of his Sacrifices and other Prayers. The Saint was very careful to help her with Maffes, Faftings, Prayers, B 2 both both by himfelf and by other Religious Men. And few days after, the appeared again for to thank him for the benefit he had procured unto her, for that the was now in Glory. St. Thomas asked her, of the condition of his two Brothers, and of his own flate, Whether it were good in the prefence of God? She answered, That their Brother Landulffe was in Purgatory, and Arnold was at rest; and that for what concerned bimself, he was in the Grace of God, and that shortly they should all of them meet together, but he should be far higher in glory, for his good Service and Pains taken in the Church. Moreover, at another time, when he was one Night praying in the Church of his Convent, at Naples, Fryar Romanus, who fucceeded him in the Chair of Divinity in France, being lately deceased, appeared unto him, St. Thomas having yet understood nothing of his death; after that he knew him, and was told by him, that he was departed out of this World, he inquired of him, Whether his Services were acceptable unto God, and if be were in the state of Grace? Romanus bid him, go on and persevere in the flate he was in, for it was very good, and God was well pleafed with it. Then St. Thomas asked Romannes, how all things went with bim, and where he was? To whom he replied, that he was now in Heaven; but had been fiftcen days in Purgatory for a neglect which he had committed in the Execution of the Bishop of Paris his Will, in a Matter which ought to have been performed out of hand, and was delayed by his fault. Some other things did St. Thomas ask him, and was fatisfid in them all, after which Romanus vanished; leaving him in great comfort and confolation. For when God will reveal fome fecrets unto his fervants, he uleth first to give them a Defire, and moveth them by his Holy Infoirations for to demand them of him, giving them an affured confidence of obtaining what they ask : upon which Ground they walk fecurely, which they could not do, if that Divine Motion were wanting, and if through a vain curiofity they did pretend to know the fecret Judgments of our Lord, and the state of Souls departed out of this Life: as many times it falleth out. Fat. Peter Ribadeneyra's Flowers of the Lives of the Saints, p. 204.

Whence came the Custom of saying Thirty Masses for the Dead, which are called the Masses of St. Gregory.

ST. Gregory the great Pope and Doctor, came to understand that a Scertain Monk that was fick, and ready to die, had hoarded up the Lives of the Saints, offence, that he commanded the Prior of the Monastery, whole name was Preciofus, to see that none of the Religious should visit him, or afford ford him any Comfort; to the end that feeing himfelf thus neglected by all, he might at leaft in that Extremity, acknowledge his Fault, do Penance, and come to be faved. The poor man died, and the Saint would not permit his Body to be buried with the reft, but to be caft upon a Dunghil, together with his three hundred Crowns: and all the Monks faid, Pecunia Tua tecum fit in Perditionem; Thy Money perifs with This Rigor was very profitable: for when the Proprietory Monk thee. perceived that all abhorred him, he had great feeling of his Crime, and died penitent: and the reft, that they might not incur the like Punishment, laid at the Abbots feet all they had, even those things which they might keep according to the Rule. After thirty days, the holy Father taking compatition of the Soul of this poor man, commanded Preciolus to fay Mals for him every day for thirty days confequently; at the end whercof the deceased Monk appeared to a Brother of his, that was a Religious Man, and told him, That be had been in Purgatory until that day, but that now by the mercy of God be was going to Glory. And this was the effect of the thirty Mailes which St. Gregory commanded to be faid for him. Whence came the cultom of faying thirty Masses for the Dead; which are called, The Masses of Saint Gregory.

St. Staniflaus Bifhop and Martyr, raifes up a Man to life that bad been three years dead, to be bis Witneß in a Process he had depending.

THE Reverend Father Ribadeneyra, in his faid Flowers of the Lives The Flowof the Saints, does acquaint us in the Life of St. Staniflaus Bifhop ers of the and Martyr, how that that holy Bifhop had bought, for the benefit of the Saints, his Church, a piece of Land of a Rich man named Peter, and had p. 324. faithfully paid him the price of it; but yet could not shew sufficient Evidences for the proof of the fame. The man that fold him this Land had now been dead three years: And his Heirs, for to pleafe the King, who bore a great enmity to the Saint, and to make their benefit of so fair an occasion, complained of the Bishop in a Juridical Court, that he had feized upon an Inheritance that belonged to them. The Bufiness was brought to be examined before the King; who finding that the Bishop wanted some necessary Writings, and that the Witneffes, for fear of his displeasure, durst not inform the Court of the Truth, condemned him to reftore the Lands to Peter's Heirs, as due and proper to them by right of Inheritance. The Saint demanded three days for to bring Peter before them, of whom he had bought the Land, and who, as we faid, had been dead and buried three years before fore. They eafily granted him his demand; making a jeft and fport of it. But the Saint fafted, watcht and pray'd with great fervour and inftancy, begging of our Lord, That feeing the Caufe was his, and that it was he who was wronged and injured by that unjust Sentance, be would be pleased to take the whole Busines in band, and rife up in his own defence. At the end of three days, having offered up the Holy Sacrifice of Mafs, he went unto the Grave where Peter lay buried, and made the Grave Stone be taken away, and the Earth opened until the Body appeared : Then touching the faid Body with his Grofier-staff, commanded Peter to rife. At which inftant the dead Body obeying the Voice of the living Saint, Peter role up and followed him to the Court, where the King was, accompanied with all his Nobles and Judges. To whom St. Staniflans fooke thus: Look here is Peter of whom I bought the Land; who having been dead, is rifen ugain, and now standeth before Ask of him if it be true that I paid him entirely that for which be 704. Told and I bought that Land for the Church. The man is sufficiently known. bis Grave is open : It is God who railed him to life, for the confirmation and assured proof of this Verity. His Word ought to be a more certain and infallible Argument of it, than all the Feftimony of Witneffes, or Evidence of Writings that can be alledged. This fo great and manifest a Miracle did extreamly daunt the Courage of the Bishop's Adversaries, and struck them to the very heart, to that they remained quite dumb, and had not one word to fay : For Puter declared publickly the Trath, and very gravely and feriously warned his Heirs to do Penance for this their fin, and for baving (o much molested the boly Prelate, contrary to all Equity and fustice. St. Stanislaus offered Peter, if he defired to remain fome years in Life, to obtain it for him of Almighty God. But he chofe rather to return to his Grave, and die again prefendy, than to abide in to troublefome and dangerous a Life: and told the Saint, That be was in Putgatory, and that yet he had fomething to suffer in Satufaction for the remnant of bis fins : and that be had rather be fecure of his falvation, al. though it were by undergoing the reft of the pain and torment due to his former fins, than engage bimfelf in the bazard and seopardy, by embarking anew to be toffed in the ftormy and tempeftuous Sea of the wicked World. That he begged of him to befeech our Lord to remit and partion him the reft of his Punnhment, and to release him foon out of that Prifon, and bring him to enjoy his glory in the bleffed company of Saints. When he had faid this, St. Stanillans accompanied him to the Grave, and a multitude of peopte went along with them. Peter laid himfelf down in his Tomb, and composed himself for his last Reft; and begging of all the Assembly for to recommend his Soul unto our Lord, died the lecond time, for to go to live eternally with Almighty God.

St. Terela by her Prayers refcues a Perfor out of Purgatory.

A Certain Gentleman, who had given the Saint (viz. Terefa) an The Flow-Inheritance for the founding of a Monastery in Valliodolid, not ers of the long after fuddenly fell fick and died, and his Speech failing him, he Lives of was not able to make a full Confeffion, although he gave great fights of p. 793. Contrition. She hearing of his Death, was much afflicted for him, fearing left perhaps his Soul was damned ; and as the was recommending him to God, our Lord told her, That his falvation had been in great danger, and that he had fnewed him mercy for the fervice he had done his Mother, giving her a House for the building of a Monastery' there of her Order, and that he flould come out of Purgatory when the first Mais should be faid there, and not before. The Saint having heard this, being fo full of Charity as the was, for that the had always before her Eyes the grievous pains that this Soul endured, could find no repose until she had founded the Monastery. And to the end that we might know of the compatition that our Lord has of the Souls that are in Purgatory, and how pleafing and grateful that is unto him, which is done for them, himfelf one day, feeing that the Saint, by reafon of certain Affairs which occurred, made forme delay ro go to Fallio: dolid to found the faid Monaffery, haftened her on as the was in Prayer, bidding her to make haft away for that that Soul fuffered much And all was fulfilled as had been revealed unto her: for Mass being ended, and the Saint approaching to receive the Holy Communion, the Gendeman who had been Malter of the Houfe and Garden, where fie and her Companions now were; appeared unto her with a glorious and chearful countenance, and thanked her with joyned hands for that which the had done for his delivery out of Purgatory; and after this he mounted up to Heaven:

Accordingly he came; and bidding Thursillus to leave his Body to rest in his Bed, for that his Soul was only to troop along with him.

rious Court that had a wonderful light arising, faid the Guide, from the decimation of the Just. Here they met with St. Fames, who had fent for this Stranger, and he bill St. Julian and St. Domnius, the Keepers of the place, shew the Stranger the penal places of the Wicked. and the Manfions of the Just. Hereupon St. Julian inform'd him that this was the Court for all Souls newly departed their Bodies; and there the Places and Manfions were forted and affign'd as well for the damn'd, as for those that were to undergo the torments of Purgatory. This place was conflituted by our Saviour upon the Interceffion of the glorious Virgin Mary, for the reception of Souls that are new born in Chrift. that they may there convene as foon as they leave the Body, to be try'd according to their Works, without any invalion of the Devils. And this is call'd the Congregation of Souls. The Souls of the Juft. were perfectly white, and had the Afpects of Youths. Without this Wall was the place of punishment for those that usd injustice in matter of Tythes, and the Saint perceiving by our Strangers coughing in paffing by it, that he had been tardy in that business, he commanded him to make a publick Confession of it at his return before the whole Congregation, and require Absolution from the Prieft.

Eastwardly between two Walls, was a vast place of Purgatory-fire, and beyond it a Pond to rense Souls in that had waded through Purgatory, the water being salt and cold beyond comparison. Over this Purgatory St. Nicholas was the Overseer.

There was a mighty Bridge all befet with Nails and Spikes, and leading to the Mount of Joy: On which Mount was a ffately Church, feemingly capable to contain all the Inhabitants of the World, and into which the Souls were no fooner entred, but that they forgot all their former torments.

Returning to the first Church, there they found St. Michael the Archangel, and the Apostles Peter and Paul. St. Michael caus'd all the white Souls to pass through the Flames, unharm'd, to the Mount of Joy; and those that had black and white spots, St. Peter led into Purgatory to be purified.

In one part fate St. Paul, and the Devil opposite to him with his Guards, with a pair of Scales between them, weighing all fuch Souls as were all over black; when upon weighing a Soul the Scale turn'd toward St. Paul, he fent it to Purgatory there to expiate its fiting; when towards the Devil, his Crew with great triumph plung'd it into the flaming Pit.

Now it happened one Evening that they faw a Devil coming full fpeed upon a black Horfe, whom his Companions went out to meet with great triumph. St. Domnian forc'd the Fiend to tell him whole foul it was he to racked with riding. He answered, That it was a Peer of England, who di'd the night before, without Confession, or receiving our Lord's Body: That he had render'd his People very milerable upon the inftigation of his Wife; and that having turn'd him into that Horfe-like form, he had brought him down to eternal punishment. And then the Piend casting his Eyes upon the Russick, Who's he, quoth he to the Saint? Quoth the Saint, Dost not know him? faid the Fiend, I faw this man at Tidltude Church in Effect at the time of its Dedication. Cry'd the Saint, How went you in? To whom the Fiend answer'd, In a Womans Garb; by the fame token that coming up to the Fons, and meaning to go into the Chancel, the Deacon met me with a holy Water flick, and fo frighted me with the firmkling of that Water, that giving a skream, I leapt at once two furlongs from the Church into a Field. And the Russick did affirm, that he and others had heard the noise, but were altogether ignorant of the meaning.

Then the Ruftick, under the protection of the Saints, faw the Devils Stage Plays: First, they introduc'd a proud man in his Robes, structing along big, cocking his Eye-brows, attering swelling Words, in short having all the manners of Imperiousness and Arrogancy; but while he was threatning horrible Executions, and priding himself in his Trappings, all on the fudden they turn'd into a flame about him, bulining him most dismally, and then the Devils feizing him, tormented him beyond what humane Malice can imagine.

Then entred a Prieft, whole Tongue they toar out, and then made him fuffer the fame comments as the proud man, for not having given his Flock either Exottation, or a pious Example, or Prayers, or Maffes, for the temporal Goods he received from it.

Then came a Souldier arm'd Capa-pee, and mounted on a black Horfe, prauncing and brandifhing his Spear against the Devils, and boasting of his Exploits; but after some play, they dismount him, and he had the same fate as the former.

Then they introduc'd a Lawyer, the moft famous of all England, but ended his life miferably in the very year of this Vision. He was wont to take Fees on both fides, and the Fiends now forc'd him to act the fame over again: for he advis'd here on the right and left, and took, counted, and pocketed the Moneys he thus received from both Parties. But the Devils having diverted themfelves with his acting in this manmer, on a fudden they turned all his Money into a boiling Liquor, and compell'd him to fwallow it, attending this with fundry other extremities of torments. His Wife was also there in burning Denance, for having pretended a Ring of hers to have been ftollen, and causid Excommunication thereupon to be pronounced ; whereas the had ignonutly laid it up in her Gabinet.

Furgatory Prov'd by Miracles :-

Then came an Adulterer and an Adulterels, representing the very act of Copulation, with the most filthy venerial motions, and immodely poltures, before the whole Assembly. And then becoming as it were distracted, they fell bitterly upon one another, changing their superficial Love into Cruelty and Hatred. And then were by the Infernals, in like manner as the former, as also all Fornicators are, with punishments beyond description.

Then two Backbiters enter'd with wry faces and odd grimaces. The two heads of a burning Spear were put into their mouths; which knawing upon with difforted looks they quickly met at the middle, and then tearing one another, they all embru'd their faces with biting.

Then Thieves, Incendiaries, and Violators of holy places, were introduc'd, and were rack'd by the Devils upon burning Wheels, and fundry other Inftruments of torment.

The Ruftick likewife faw near the entrance of the lower Hall as it were four Streets; the firft was full of innumerable Furnaces and Cauldrons fill'd with flaming Pitch & other Liquids, and boiling of fouls, whofe heads were like those of black Fishes in the feething Liquor. The fecond had its Gauldrons ftor'd with Snow and Ice, to torment fouls with horrid Cold. The third had thereof boiling Sulphur and other materials affording the worft of flinks for the vexing of fouls that had wallow'd in the filth of Luft. The fourth had Cauldrons of a most horrid falt and black Water. Now finners of all forts were alternately tormented in these Cauldrons.

Now returning to the Temple, upon the Mount of Joy, the Ruftick had a fight of the introduction of pure white fouls, and was made fenfible how much they were help'd to the poffeffion of eternal Joys, by the means of the Mafles of their Friends in the World: nay, and faw many of his Acquaintance dancing Attendance upon St. Michael for admittance. That Saint likewife fhew'd him the feveral Manfions and Apartments of those that gradually mounted up to infinite Happinels; and how they at certain hours each day heard Canticles from Heaven, as if all the forts of Mufick in the World had joyn'd in confort.

Then he led him to a place all bedeckt with infinite variety of Flowers and Herbs, having a molt clear Fountain branching it felf into four ftreams of a various Liquor and colour. Upon this Fountain ftood a molt beautiful Tree of a wonderful bignefs, and immenfe height, affording all forts of Fruits, and the flavour of all Spices. Under this Tree, near the Fountain, lay a man of a graceful mien and Gigantick flature, having a Veftment on from his breaft to his feet, of various colours and wonderful beauty : he feem'd to laugh with one Eye, and weep with the other. This is Adam, quoth St. Michael, who by his fimiling Eye denotes denotes the joy he receives from the ineffable glorification of his Sons that are to be faved; and by the other weeping one, denounces the forrow he undergoes on the account of the rebrobation of fome of his Sons, and the jult Judgment of God upon the damned. The Veftment with which he is covered, but not a compleat Robe, is the Veft of Immortality and Glory, which he was ftript of at his first prevarication: for he began to receive this Veft from Abel his just Son, till now thro' the whole fucceffion of his just Sons. And as the Elect fhine with various Virtues, fo this Veft is pictured of a various colour. When the number of the Elect Sons shall be compleat, then Adam shall be all over cloath'd with a Robe of Immortality and Glory; and so the World shall be at an end.

Then the Saint led the Russick into a much more ravishing place than any yet seen, and there shew'd him St. Catharina, St. Margareta, and St. Ostiba, whole beauty having admired, St. Michael bid St. Julian convey him back to his Body, and accordingly did so, but how is not known. He lay as it were in a Trance for two days and two nights after, but after that repairing to Church, he was follicited by the Prieft and his Parishoners to acquaint them with his Revelations; but he declining so to do, St. Julian appear'd to him the night following, and commanded him to gratifie them in that point. And in obedience to the Saint, he gave an account of his Vision in the English Tongue, with such Eloquence as created admiration in all his Auditors; and the more as having been known to have ever been a man of narrow sence and few words.

The occasion of the Institution of a set and solemn day, for the Praying for Souls out of Purgatory.

T HE Cardinal Peter Damian, a very holy and very learned man, The Flowers of the Lives of the year of our Lord 1048) that a Religious man of France returning from the Lives of the Saints, Hierufalem, was by a Tempest carried to an Island or Rock, where there p. 828. was an holy Hermite, who told him, that there hard by were great burning flaming fires, where the fouls of the Dead were tormented; that he heard the Devils oftentimes howl and complain, for that by the Prayers and Alms of the Faithful, the pains which thole fouls suffered were mitigated, and the source of the out of their hands; and that particularly they complained of Odiolo Abbot, and his Monks, for their care and vigilance in favouring and helping them: and conjured the Religious man, because he was a Frencheman, and knew the Monastery of Cluny, (as he faid) and the Abbot Odilo, to entreat the faid Abbot, and to charge him in his name to perfevere in that holy Exercife, and by his fervent Prayers and continual Alms, to endeavour to give refreshment to the fouls of our Brethren that are tormented in Purgatory, that fo the joy of the Bleffed might be increased in Heaven, and the forrow of the Devils in Hell. The Religious man returned into France, communicated that which he had heard of the boby Hermite with Odilo Abbot, and with all that bleffed Congregation which was under his charge : And the Abbot ordained that in all his Monasteries, upon the fecond of November, the day after the Festivity of All Saints, thould be made a particular Commenioration of the Dead, and that efpecial care should be used to succour and relieve them, by Prayers Alms, and Maf-And that which St. Odilo inftituted in his Convents, was afterles. wards received and established by Apostolical Authority in the whole Universal Church. Peter Galefinas Protonotary Apostolical, fays, that many write, that Pope John XVI. inflighted this Commemoration by the counfel and advice of St. Odila. It is true, that Almarias Fortunations Bilhop of Trevers, who lived about 200 years before Odilo, in a Book of the Ecclefiastical Offices, which he wrote to Ludowicons Pins Emperour, after the Office of the Saints, he puts that of the Dead; and he fays that he did to, because many depart out of this Life, who do not go prefently to Heaven, for whom that Office was wont to be faid : which is a fign that even in his time this was done, as Cardinal Baronius has noted. And this is fufficient to declare the Inflitution of this Commemonation of the Dead, and the occasion of making of it.

Certain Revelations which the Saints have had concerning the Souls in Pargatory.

Flowers of St. Gregory the Great writes, that the Soul of Palchafins appeared to the lives of U. St. Gorman, and teftified unto him, that he was freed from the the Saints, pains of Purgatory for his Prayers. When the fame St. Gregory was p.830. Abbot of his Monastery, a Monk of his, called Justice, now dead, ap. peared to another Monk, called Copiofus, and advertized him, that he had been freed from the Torments of Purgatory, by thirty Maffes, which Pretiofas, Prefect of the Monastery by the Order of St. Gregory, had faid for his Soul, as is recounted in his Life. St. Gregory of Tours writes of a Holy Danizel, called Vitaliana, that the appeared to St. Martin, and told him, that the had been in Purgatory for a venial fin which the had committed, and that the was delivered by the Prayers of the Saint. Peter Damian writes, that St. Severin appeared to a Clergy-man, and told him, that he had been in Purgatory, for not having faid the Divine Service at due hours, and that afterwards God had had delivered him, and carried him to the company of the bleffed. St. Bernard writes, that St. Malachy freed his Sifter from the pains of Purgatory by his Prayers, and that the fame Sifter had appeared unto him, begging of him that relief and favour. And St. Bernard himfelf by his Interceffion freed another, who had fuffered a whole Year the pains of Purgacory : as William Abbet writes in his Life. And St. Rembert. Archbishop of Bremes, fasting forty days for a Priest, called Arnolfus, freed him out of Purgatory : and the fame Arnolfus appeared to him, and gave him thanks for it, as Surius relates in his Life. And St. Thomas of Aquin, being at his Prayers, a fifter of his, a religious woman, now dead, appeared unto him, and told him, how that fhe was in Purgatory : and afterwards the appeared to him again, giving him thanks for the benefit, which by the means of his Fafts, Prayers, and Maffes, the had received, and for the glory which the now had in Heaven. Pope Benedict the Eighth, being now dead, appeared to St. Odilo Abbot, (of whom we spoke before) glorious and beautiful, and gave him thanks, with profound reverence, confesting, that by his Prayers, and the Prayers of his Religious, God had done him the favour to take him out of the prilon of Purgatory, and to place him in Heaven amongst the Elect.

St. Martin raises one from the Dead.

W Ithout the City of Poiliers, St. Martin built a poor Monastery Plomers of for himself and for some of those that followed him. Amongst the Lives these was one, a Catechumen, who, when St. Martin was upon a time Saints, out of the Convent, fell fick of such a violent Disease, that within a P.856 few days it took away his life, and he died without being baptized. The Saint returned home, and found his Monks much afflicted, for what had happed; and the Corple of the dead Man, ready to be carried to the Grave : He approached near unto him, lad and difconlolate : looked ftedfaftly upon him with great feeling, and by a particulat impulse from God, commanded them all to go out of the Chamber, and the Doors being flut, ftretched himfelf upon the cold Body of the Dead Man, and making a fervorous Prayer to our Lord, befought him to reftore him tolife: and our Lord did to, infomuch that those who were without, expecting the event, entring into the Chamber, to their great admiration and aftonishment, found him allve, whom they were about to bury. The Catechumen they revived, received immediately the Water of Holy Baptism, and lived many years; and recounted how that his Soul being gone out of the Body, was prefented before the Tribunal of God, and that it was condemned to be Theobald inftantly betakes him to his Beads, and begins his task. Whileft he was at his work, there is News brought of an Army approaching to fack the Town. The Bilhop is driven to give over his Devotion for that time. When the Hurly burly was past, he falls to his Bus'ness the fecond time, but with as ill success; for then there arole a Civil Commotion in the Town. The third time he means to make all fure: but fee, (as the Devil would have it) the whole City, with the Bilhop's Palace, was all on a light fire; his Servants were importunate with him, to caft away his Book, and to provide for his own fafety. Do what they could, they could not prevail. All the Answer they could get is this, that though the Town should be burnt to the ground, he is refolved not to give over, till he had made an end. To be fhort, he was as good as his word. Would you hear the iffue?. He had no looner finished, but the Ice melred, the Soul was delivered; and the Fire va-'nished ; neither was there any damage at all received. If this be not true, ask the Fishermen; Poor Souls, they little thought they had taken fuch a Booty.

Of the miraculous Efficacy of Alms and Prayers for Souls departed, in an Instance of their Extending to the Living when mistakingly applied

He Author of the Defence of Purgatory, and of Prayer for the Souls De- Of Prayer . parted, recounteth as from Bede in this his old English; how that for Souls Departed, in a fighten Field betwixt Egfride and Edeldred, two Princies of our P. 211. Land, it fortuned that a yonge Gentleman of Egfrides Army, should be fo grievoully wounded, that falling down both himfelf without fense, and in all mens sights, stark dead, he was letten lye of the Enemies, and his Body fought with care to be buried of his Friends. A Brother of his, a good Prieft and Abbot, with diligence making fearch for his Body, amongst many happened on one that was exceeding like him, (as a man may eafily be deceived in the alteration that ftreight falleth upon the Soul's departure, to the whole form and fashion of the Body) and bestowed of his Love, the duty of Obsequies, with folemn Memorials for the reft of him, whom he took to be his Brother deceafed: burying him in his own Monastery, and causing Mass to be done daily for his pardon, and Soul's release. But so it fortuned, that his Brother Huma, (for fo was he caulled) being not all-out dead, within four and twenty Hours came reasonably to himself again : and gathering withal fome ftrength, role up, washt himself, and made means to come to fome friend or acquaintance, where he might falve his Sores, and close his Woundes again : But by lacke of strengthe to make shifte, and by misfortune, he fel into his Enemies handes: and therby the Capitaine examined of his Estate, he denied himself to be of Name or Degrie in his Coontry. Yet by the lykelyhoods that they gathered of his coomly demeanure, and Gentleman-lyke taulke, which he could hardly diffemble, they mistruste (as it was indeede) that he was a Man of Arms, and more than a Commen Souldear. Therfore in hope of good gaine by his raunion, they thought good after he was full recovered, for fear of his escape to lay Irons upon him, and so to make sure-work. But so God wrought, that no fetters could howld him : For every day once at a certaine houre, the bandes bracke lowle without force, and the man made free. But he answered in fadnesse, that he was alltogether unskilt ful in fuche thinges. Mary (quod he) I have a brother in my coontry that is a prieft, and I knowne certainly, that he faithe often Mass for my foule, imposing me to be departed and flaishe in baravte, and if I were in an Other Lyfe, I perceive my foul by his interceffion should be fo lowfed out of paines, as my body is now from bondes : The capitaine perceiving (o much, and belyke in fum awe of Religion, feeinge the worke of God to be fo straunge, fould him to a Londoner ; with whome the fame things happened in his bondes lowfing every day. By which occasion he was licensecto go home to hisfriends and procure his ranfom, for chargeing him with divers forts of fureft bands, none could fallfely howlde him. And fo upon promiffe of his returne or payment of his appointed Price, he went his wayes, and afterward truely discharged his Credit. Which doone by friendship that he found in the fame Coontry, afterward returned to his owne parties, and to his brother's howfe : to whome when he had uttered all the Hiftory of his ftraunge fortune, both of his mifery and miraculous relieving, he enquired diligentlye the whole circumfrance, with the howre and time of his daily lowfinge, and by conferring together, they founde that his bondes brake lowle, especially at the very juste time of his celebration for his foule. At which times he confeffed, that he was otherwife in his great adverfities often released also. Thus hath that holy Writer allmost word for word, and att thende he addeth this : Many bearing thus much of the Party himself, were wonderfully inflamed with faith and zeale, to pray, to give almele, and to offer (acrifice of the boly Oblation, for the delivery of theire welbeloved frendes departed out of this life. For they understood, that the healthfull factifice, was availeable for the redemption of both Body and Soule everlafttingly. And this ftorie, thid they that heard it of the Parties owne Monthe, re-Ported unto me. Whereupon having fo good proofe, I dare be bowlde to write it in my Ecclefiaffical Hiffory. And thus much faithe Beda abowte eghte hundred yeares ago, when our Nation being but yonge in Christianity, was Redde in the true Belief, by fundry wonderous Workes of God.

St. Catherine of Sienna's Vision of a Soul in Grace.

Ct. Catherine of Sienna, conceived an ardent Defire to behold a Soul In Grace, and advantaged with all the Beauties thereof: Full of this Defire, the was no fooner departed from a Sermon, but the heard a Voice from Heaven, saying unto her, Catherine, presently theu shalt see the fruit of thy Defire. And retiring her felf into her Oratory, fhe there befought God for the performance of his Promife, and fuddenly beheld a Perfon of incredible Majefty, all circled about with Light, and thining with clear Splendor; at the fight of which, the was to wrap't in Admiration, and Reverence, as the prefently proftrated her felf before its Feet, with intention to adore it, had it not with these words prohibited her: Catherine forbear, for I am not God, as thou imaginest? And who then? answered the Saint. I am, faid It, the Soul of a certain Murtherer you prayed for, not long fince, in seeing me led to Execution; who being new cleansed in the Fire of Purgatory, and going all purified to Heaven, after I shall bave left you satufied of your Defire by the Commandment of Almighty God.

An admirable Method to love, ferve, and bonour the Bleffed Virgin Mary. Written in Italian by the R. F. Alexis de Salo, Capuchin : And Englished by R.F. Permiffu Superiorum, 1639. P. 179.

The Efficacy of the Rolary to free a Soul from Purgatory.

T what time St. Dominick preached in the Kingdom of Aragon, A a certain young Virgin of good account, called Alexandria, made Instance unto him, as he came down from out of the Pulpit, (where he had omitted nothing that might make for the Commendations of the Rofary,) to be admitted into the Sodality thereof; which fhe obtained, although for the reft, her Life was no ways accordingly, the being one who fpent much more time in adorning her Body, than to have her Soul well adorned. Now it hapned, that two Gentlemen at once making Suit unto her, it was sufficient ground of Quarrel (as they in their Madness thought,) one to challenge the other into the Field, where they both remained dead upon the place. The Friends of either hearing of this fad Accident, and imagining her (as it was true,) the Cause, to be revenged on her, they rushed into her House, and notwithstanding she defired, at least, but so much respite as to Confess her self; they would not allow it her, but presently cut off her Head, and threw it into a Pit. But our Bleffed Lady, who D has has ever a special care of her devoted Servants, (though never so defective,) revealed the Fact unto St. Dominick, who, in order to her merciful Commands, went to the Pit, and called on Alexandria by her Name; when, behold ! (a wondrous Accident,) the Angels, vifibly, in fight of all the People, brought up the Head from the bottom of the Pit, which joined unto the Body. She befought the Saint to hear her Confeffion ; which being done, the declared three Things, worthy of particular Note, arrived unto her both before and after the was dead, The first, That by vertue of her being of the Confraternity of the Rofary, fhe had a perfect Act of Contrition at the Inftant of her Death, without which, infallibly, the had died Eternally. The fecond, That as foon as the was dead, the Devils putting her to great Afright, the was marvelloufly fecured and comforted by the glorious Queen of Heaven. The third, That for Penance, and fatisfaction of the death of those two Gentlemen, the was condemned to Purgatory for Twohundred Years, and for Five hundred more, for her Vanity in Attire, the cause of that so lamentable effect; but that she hoped, by the Merits of the fame Confraternity, to be foon delivered from that Pu-And having faid this, after the had remained alive two nishment. whole days, for the Confirmation of the Miracle, and to augment the Devotions of the Sodality, fhe left this Life again, whole Body was honourably Interred by the Sodalifts there : When Fifteen days after, the appeared again unto St. Dominick aff in Glory, cloathed in refplendent Beams of light, declaring unto him, after a world of Thanks for the ineftimable Benefits the had received of him, two Things of efpecial Note concerning this Devotion of the Rofary. The one was, That the was delegated to him from the Souls in Purgatory, with a Petitionto be likewife inroll'd in the Sodality, to receive the benefit of it amongst The other, That the Angels much rejoiced at the Erection the reft. of this Sodality, and that God inftiled himfelf the Father of it, the Bleffed Virgin the Mother, c.c. Notwithfanding the Spirit of God had made him underftand the Vanity of all humane Things, being now far ftepped into years, he went into a Monaftery of the Order of Clugny, there the more pioufly to pass the remnant of his days, as it is faid, The best Incense cometh from old Trees. He often spake, among the Holy Friars, of a Vision which he faw, when he as yet was in the World, and which he acknowledged to be no fmall Motive to work his Conversion. This brute came to the Ears of venerable Peter, and who, for the affairs of his Order, was then gone into Spain. Behold the Caufe why he, never admitting any Discourses to be entertained, if they were not well verified, took the pains to go into a little Monastery of Nazare, where Engelbert was, and to question him upon it in the presence of the Bishops of Oleron. and O/ma, conjuring him, in the virtue of Holy Obedience, to tell him punctually the Truth touching the Vision he had seen, whil's he led a fecular Life. This Man being very grave, and very circumfpect in all he faid, spake the words which the Author of the History hath couched in his proper terms.

In the time that Alphonfus the younger, Heir of the great Alphonfus, warred in Castile against certain Factions disunited from his Obedience. he made an Edict, That every Family in his Kingdom should be bound to furnish him with a Soldier; which was the Cause, that for Obedience to the King's Commands, I fent into his Army one of my Houshold Servants, named Sancins. The Wars being ended, and the Troops discharged, he returned to my House, where having some time fojourned, he was feized by a Sickness, which, in few days, took him away into the other World. We performed the Obsequies usually obferved towards the Dead, and four Months were already paft, we heard nought at all of the state of his Soul, when, behold ! upon a Winters Night, being in my Bed, throughly awake, I perceived a Man, who, ftirring up the Ashes of my Hearth, opened the burning Coals, which made him the more eafily to be feen. Although I found my felf much terrified with the fight of this Ghoft, God gave me Courage to ask him, Who he was, and for what purpose be came thither to lay my Hearth abroad? But he, in a very low voice answered, Master, Fear nothing, I am your poor Servant Sancius: I go into Castile, in the company of many Soldiers, to explate my Sins in the fame place where I committed them.

I fourly replied, If the Commandment of God call you thisher, to what purpose come you bitber ? Sir, faith he, Take it not amis, for it is not without the Divine Permission. I am in a state not desperate, and wherein I may be helped by you, if you bear any good will towards me. Hereupon I required what his Necessity was, and what Succor he expected from me? You know, Master, said he, that a little before my death, you sent me into a place where ordinarily men are not fanctified. Liberty, ill Ex-D 2 Digitized by Google ample, ample; Youth, and Temerity, all conspire against the Soul of a poor Soldier, who bath no Government. I committed many Outrages during the late War, robhing and pillaging, even to the Goods of the Church, for which I am at this present grievously tormented: But, good Master, if you loved me alive as one of yours, forget me not after death. I ask no part of your great Riches, but only your Prayers, and some Alms for my sake, which will much affiss to mitigate my pain. My Mistrifs oweth me about Eight Francks upon a Reckoning between her and me, let her not bestow it for my Body, which bath no need of it, but the comfort of my Soul, which expected it from your Charity.

I know not how I found my felf emboldened by these Speeches, but I had more defire to entertain it, than fear of the Apparition. I demanded, Whether it could tell me News of one of my Countrymen; named Peter Dejuca, who died awhile fince? To which he made Answer, I need not trouble my felf with it, for he was already in the number of the Bleffed, fince the great Alms be gave in the last Famine, had purchafed Heaven for him. From thence I fell upon another Question, and was curious to know, What had hapned to a certain Judge, whom I very well knew, and who lately paffed inforthe other Life? To which he replied, Sir, Speak not of that miserable Man; for Hell possifietb bins through the corruption of fuffice which be, by damnable practice, exercised, baving an Honour and Soul saleable to the prejudice of his Confeience. My Curiofity carried me, higher, to enquire what became of King Alphonfus the Great? At which time I heard another Voice that came from a Window behind me, faying, very diftinctly, It is not of Sancius you must demand that, because be, as yet, can fay nothing of the flate of that Prince; but I have more Experience thereof than he : I deceasing Five Years ago, and being present in an Accident which gave me some light of it. 1 was much furprized, unexpectedly hearing this other Voice, and turning, faw, by the help of the Moons brightness, which reflected into my Chamber, a Man leaning on my Window, whom I entreated to tell me, Where then King Alphin fus was ? Whereto he replied, He will knew, that paffing out of this Life, be had been much tormented, and that the Prayers of good Religions Men much belped him; but be could not, at this prefent, (ay in what state be was. Having spoken thus much, he turned towards Sancius, fitting near the Fire, and faid, Let us go, it is time we depart. At which Sancius making no Anfwer, fpeedily role up, and redoubled his Complaints, with a lamentable Voice, faying, Sir, I entreat you, once again, remember me, and that my Mistris perform the Request I made you. The next day Engelbert understood from his W ife what the Spirit told him, and with all observation disposed himself speedily and charitably, to fatisfie all was required.

T HE Sphear of Hell, or to speak more properly, the Circumserence of Hell, is the Lowest part of the Earth, and the Bigness of it is about seven thousand, eight hundred and seventy five Miles. The Breadth of it, that is to say the Diameter, is the third part of the Circumserence, or little less; and so are all Spherical Bodies. It is distant from Us three thousand Miles, and seven hundred fifty eight. and a quarter.

Above the Sphear of Hell is that of Purgatory, fifteen thousand; feven hundred and fifty Miles in Circuit, and distant from Us two thousand, five hundred and five Miles and a half.

Above the Sphear of Purgatory is that of Limbus Patrum, which is twenty three thousand, fix bundred and twenty five Miles, and distant from Us one thousand, two hundred and fifty two Miles.

Above this is Abraham's Bosome, much about the same length and diftance as the other.

Some object againft this, that we have plac'd Hell lowermoft, and have made it lefs than the Earth, or any of the other Places, whereas we ought to have made it bigger, in regard of the vaft numbers of People that have been crouding thither for thefe many thousand of years, and never return, and will be daily crowding thither till the Worlds end. To which we answer, That when the Center of the Universe shall be remov'd out of the way, after the Day of Judgment, and the Earth, with all that infinite heap of Mountains and Seas, shall be calcin'd to nothing, there will be space enough; besides that, the Damned in Chains and Fetters must not expect to have so much literty at the Saints in Heaven who are unconfin'd.

A Knight of Oxfordshire refusing to pay Tythes, One rais'd from the Dead convinces him of his Crime.

Obn Brompton, Abbot of Joreval, and one of the Decem Scriptores, Col. 736. tells us, That St. Auftin, (who was fent hither from Rome) once upon a time being to preach in the County of Oxford, at a Town which is called Compton, there came to him the Priest of the faid Town, faying; Father, may it please you to under stand, that a Knight, the Lord of this Mannor, having been often admonished by me, will not pay the Tythes of those things which God has given him; and having threatned him with the Sentence of Excommunication, I have found him the more obstinate. Which St. Austin hearing, when he had first sent for the Knight, faid thus to him. My Son, what is this which I bear of thee ? Why pay you not your Tythes to God and the Church ? Know you not that the Tythes are not yours, but God's? To whom the Knight answered in wrath; Who plowed or fowed the Land? Did not I? Know all men therefore, that to him belongs the tenth Sheaf, to whom belong the other nine. To whom St. Auftin replyed, My Son, do not talk at this rate. For you may affure your felf, that unless you pay your Tythes as other Christian People use to do. I will excommunicate you. And turning to the Altar to fay Mafs, he faid aloud before all the People, I command that no Excommunicate Perfon be prefent at Mass. At which Words a Dead Corpse which lay buried in the Entrance of the Church, rearing up it felf, and going out into the Church-yard, stood there like a Statue all the while that St. Auftin was faying Mass. Upon the fight of this, all the Faithful that were there present, being almost frighted out of their Wits, came to Bleffed Auftin, and told him what had happened; To whom, faith he, fear not. But let a Crofs with the Holy Water go before Us, and let Us fee what is the matter. Whereupon Auftin going along with the People. came with them to the Entrance of the Church yard, and when he faw the Dead Body, he faid, I command thee in the name of the Lord, that thou tell me who thou art. To whom the Dead Man answered, When on God's behalf you commanded that no Excommunicate Person should be present at Mass, the Angels of God, who are your constant Companions whereever you go, cast me out of the Place where I lay buried, saying, That the Friend of God, Austin, bas commanded the stinking Flesh to be cast forth out of the Church of God. For in the time of the Britains, before the fury of the Pagan Saxons had wasted this Land, I was the Patron of this Parish. And though I was often admonifhed by the Prieft of this Church, Enever paid my Tythes; and at length being excommunicated by him, I afterwards dyed, and was thrust down to Hell. When they had heard this, both the Saint himfelf, and all the People that were with him, wept much. And Austin Said, Do you know the Place where the Priest was buried who excommunicated you? Who answered, be lies in this very Church-yard. Go before Us, faith Auftin, and frew Us the Place. The Dead Man went before, and came to a certain Place near the Church, where there appeared no fign at all of a Grave. And he faid to Auftin, and all the People that followed after him, Lo this is the Place, dig here, and ye [hall find the Bones of the Prieft. They digged therefore at St. Auftin's bidding, and deep in the Earth they found a few Bones, which by the length of time-were turned very dry. Auftin asking whether these were the Bones of the Prieft, the Dead Man answered, yes. Then Aufin praying a good while, faid, That all may know that Life and Death are in the bands of God, to whom nothing is impossible; In his name arife, for we have occasion for thee. The words were no sooner out of his mourh, but all that were prefent faw the difperfed Duft come together, and the Bones to be compacted with Nerves, and the Man himfelf to rife up. The Prieft thus ftanding before Auftin, Auftin faith to him, Brother, Do you know that Man? He answered, Father, I do know bim: and I with I had not known bim. Quoth Auftin, You excommunisated him. Quoth the Dead Priest, I did so, and I had reason. For be was always a withholder of Tythes from the Church, and a Flagitious Man to his laft day. Auftin replied, Brother, You know that God is merciful, and therefore you ought likewife to have mercy upon the Creature and Image of God,. who was also redeemed with his Blood, and has so long endured the pains of Hell. Then he put a Whip into his hand, and the Other begging lamentably for Abfolution upon his knees, the Dead Prieft releafed the Sins of the Dead Patron. Whom being now abfolved, Auftin commanded to return to his Grave, and wait for the Last Day. And asfoon as he was returned to his Grave, he immediately fell all into Afhes. Then faith Auftin to the Prieft, How long bave you lain bere ? He made answer, an bundred and fifty years and upwards. Quoth Auftin, And bow have you fared all this while ? very well, quoth the Priest, and among the Delights of Eternal Life. Then faid Auftin, Would you be willing to have me pray to the Lord that you may return to live amongst us, and to belp us by preaching to bring back Souls to their Creator, which are now beguiled by the Devil? God forbid, Father, faith the Prieft, that I Spould be disturbed from my Reft, and that you should cause me to return again to the Toilfome Life of this World : Then faid Auftin to the Prieft. My Dear Friend, go and reft in peace, and withal, pray for me, and all the Holy Church of God. Who entring into his Grave, was prefently turned into Ashes. Then Austin called the Knight to him, and faid, How now Son, will you yet pay your Tythes to God? But the Knight trembling, fell down at his feet, weeping and confessing his guilt, and begging pardon; and having left all that he had in the World, and shaved his Crown, he followed St. Auftin all the days of his life, and clofed his last day in all Holiness, and entred into the joy of Eternal Happinels.

Eldred In T Ldred, Abbot of Rievall, gives this following Account; That in L the time when King Etbelred, by the Preaching of St. Auftin, embraced the Christian Faith : his Nephew Sigebert, who governed Eaft Angles (rather East Saxon,) by the same holy Bishop's Ministry received the Faith. This Prince built one Church within the Walls of London. the principal City of the Kingdom; where he honourably placed Militus Bishop of the same City without the Walls : Likewise towards the West he founded a Famous Monastery to the honour of St. Peter, and endowed it with many Poffeffions. Now on the Night before the Day defign'd for the Dedication of this Church, the bleffed Apoftle St. Peter appear'd to a certain Fisher-man in the habit of a Stranger, on the other fide of the River of Thames, which flowed by this Monastery, demanded to be waft over, which was done : Being out of the Boat, he entered into the Church in the fight of the Fisher-men; and prefently a heavenly Light shone to clear, that is turned the Night into Day. There was with the Apostle a multitude of Heavenly Citizens, coming out, and going into the Church: A Divine Melody founded, and an Odour of an unexpressible fragrancy was thed abroad. As foon as all things pertaining to the Dedication of the Church was performed, the glorious Fisher of Men returned to the poor Fisher-man, who was fo affrighted with his Divine Splendour, that he almost lost his Senfes: But St. Peter kindly comforted him, brought him to himfelf; then both of them entered into the Boat - St. Peter asked him if he had any Provifion; Who answered, that partly being stupified with seeing to great a Light, and partly detained by his return, be had taken nothing; being withal affured of a good Reward from him: hereto the Apostle replyed. Let down thy Net : The Fisher man obeyed, and immediately the Net was filled with a multitude of Fishes : They were all of the same kind, except one Salmon, of a wonderful largenes. Having then drawn them to fhoar, St. Peter faid ; Carry from me this great Fifh to Militus the Bifhop, and all the rest take for thy hire. And moreover be assured, That both Thou, all thy life-time, and thy Children after thee, for many years, shall be plentifully furnified with those kind of Fishes; only be careful that you fish not on . the Lord's Day. I who freak now with thee, am Peter. And I my felf have Dedicated this Church, built to my Fellow-Citizens, and to my Honour, (o preventing by my own Authority the Episcopal Benediction. Acquaint the Bishop therefore with the things that thou haft feen and heard, and the Signs yet marked in the Wall will confirm thy Speeches. Let him therefore surcease from bu Defign of Confecrating the Church, and only supply what I have omitted; The Celebration of the Mystery of Our Lord's Body and Blood, and the Instrution of the People; Let him likewife give notice to all, That I my (elf will oftentimes wifit this Place, and be present at the Prayers of the Faithful, and will open the Gates of Heaven to all that live Soberly, Justly and Piously in this World. And as foon as he had faid this, he prefently vanished from his fight.

The next Morning, as the Bishop Militus was going in procession to the Church with an intention to Dedicate it, the Fisher-man met him with the Fifth, and related to him whatfoever St. Peter had injoin'd him; at which the Bishop was aftonished, and having unlocked the Churchdoor, he faw the Pavement marked with Letters and Inferiptions both in Greek and Latin, and the Walls anointed in twelve feveral places with holy Oyl. He faw likewife the remainder of twelve Torches, flicking on as many Croffes, and the Church every where yet moift with Afper-All which being observed by the Bishop, and People present. fions. they rendered praife and thanks to Almighty God.

The fame Author relates, That the Children of this Fisher-man, having received a command from their Father, of paying the Tythes of all their Gain by fishing, and offer'd them to St. Peter and the Priefts attending Divine Service in this Church : But one amongst them having prefumed to defraud the Church of this, prefently was deprived of the wonted benefit of his Trade; till having confeft his Fault, and reftored what he had referved, he promifed amendment for the future.

William of Malmsbury adds to this Story; That the Fisher-man, who Malms de warvery fimple, and as yet not a Christian, discovered to the Bishop Geft. Pontific. L. 2. very exactly the Shapes and Lineaments of St. Peter, well known to the Bishop by his Picture publickly extant at Rome.

Miracles of the British,

I have thought expedient, faith he, to describe here out of the AEts of St. Birinus a wonderful Miracle befeeming an Apostolick Man, which is omitted by St. Beda. It was thus : The Holy Man being arrived to the Shore of the British Sea, and ready to take Ship, celebrated the Divine Mysteries, offering to God the Sacrifice of the Saving Hoft as a Viaticum for him/elf and Followers. After which, the Season being proper, he was bastily urged to enter the Ship: and the Wind ferving them, they failed speedily, when on the sudden Birinus called to mind that he had loft a thing infinitely precious to him, which by the urging haft of the Seamen, having his mind other ways busied, he had left bebind him at Land. For Pope Honorius had beftowed on him a Pall, or Corporal, upon which he confectated the Body of our Lord, and afterward used to wear it in a Particle of the (aid Sacred Body, which he hung about his Neck, and always carried with bim : but when he celebrated Mass, he was wont to lay it by him upon the Altar. Armed therefore with Faith, he by Divine Inspiration went down from the Sbip into the Sea, and walk'd fecurely upon it to the Shore. Where finding what he had left behind, he took it, and in like manner returned to the Ship, which he found standing still immoveable, whereas a little before he had left it failing extreme swiftly. When he was entred into the Ship, not one drop of water appeared on his Cloaths; which the Mariners feeing, kneel'd before him, and worshipped him as a God : and many of them by his Preaching were converted to the Faith of Chrift.

How St. Edmund's Head was miraculoully found, and interred with his Body.

St. Edmund, King of the Eaft-Angles, having had his Army under the Command of the valiant Count Walketule routed by the Danes, in the time of their Invafion of this Ifland, that Pious King was likewife, after fome farther Oppofition, taken by them; and being tied to a Tree by order of their General, was first most cruelly whipped, and then those Barbarians did, as it were in sport, so pierce with their Darts his whole Body in all places, that in a fhort time there was not left place for a new Wound; yet he willingly fustaining all these Torments for the Faith of Christ, and Defence of his Countrey, they cut off his Head.

But the Rage and Malicious Fury of thole Pagans not ceafing after they had thus flain King Edmund; but cafting out his Body defpigntfully, they kept the Head to revenge themfelves yet further on the Tongue which had fo conftantly founded forth the Name of Chrift: and after they had used all manner of Contemptuous Scorns upon it, they caft it into a fecret place in a thicket of a Wood adjoining, left the Chriftians fhould venerate it, and decently bury it with the Body.

There it remained a whole years space: after which the Pagans retiring out of the Countrey, the first care of the Christians was to honour their Holy King and Martyr. Assembling themselves therefore together out of their lurking Places, they reverently took his Body out of the unclean Place where it had, been caft, and then with all diligence fought for the Head. And whilft every one of them with equal Affection fearched each corner of the Wood, there hapned a Wonder not heard of in any Age before. For whilft they difpers'd themfelves in all parts, and each one demanded of his Companions, where it was that the Danes had caft the Head, the fame Head answered them aloud in their own Tongue. Here, bere, bere : neither did it cease to cry out in the same Words till it had brought them to the Place. And to add to the Wonder, there they found a mighty and fierce Wolf, which with its Fore feet held the Head, as if appointed to watch and defend it from other Beafts. When they were come, the Wolf quietly refigned it to them : fo with joyful Hymns to God they carried and joyn'd it to the Body, the Wolf in the mean time following it to the Place where they buried it; after which, the Beast returned into the Wood : In all which time, neither did the Wolf hurt any one, neither did any one fhew the least Intention to hurt the Wolf. A Monk Divinely punished for his neglect to venerate the Holy Cross.

Monk of Glastenbury named Ails, refusing to bow, as others did, F. Creffy's to a Crucifix; at last, either out of Compunction, or by Command Church of his Superior, he bowed himself: but a Voice proceeding from the I- History, mage, faid these words distinctly; Now too late Ails, now too late Ails; p. 876. Which Voice so affrighted him, that falling down, he prefently expired.

St. Dunstan's Miracles.

Once upon a time, a mighty Beam, from the top of the Church, Sarisbury threatning the Deftruction of many by its fall, St. Dunstan with his Breviary, Right hand making the fign of the Crofs, lift it up again.

Further, As this Saint was praying one Night, the Devil affails him in the fhape of a Bear, and endeavoured with his Teeth to fnatch the Staff out of his Hands, upon which the Man of God leaned; he unaffrighted lifts up historaff, and followed the horrid Monster, beating him, and finging these words: Let God arise, and let his Enemies be scattered. And the Ugly Phantas wanished.

St. Wereburga's Wild-Goofe Miracle.

Malmsbur. THE Memory of Wulfere, King of the Mercians, received a great luftre from the wonderful Sanctity of his Daughter St. Wereburga, Who after her Father's Death undertook a Religious Profession, and by her Brother was perfuaded to accept the Government of three Monasteries of Religious Virgins, Frickingham, fince called Trent, in Stafford (hire, Wedum and Hamburgh in Northamtonshire. In this Station the not only found due Obedience from her Devout Daughters, but even Irrational and Wild Creatures became fubject to her Command, as if by her San-· ctity the had recovered that Empire which Man enjoy'd in his Primitive Innocence. This will be made appear by her banifhing from her Territory great flocks of Wild Geefe for their Importunity and waftful Devonring her Corn and other Fruits. The manner of it was as followeth.

> There was near the Walls of the Town a Farm belonging to the Monastery, the Corn whereof was much wasted by Flocks of wild Geefe, which the Steward of the place endeavoured, but in vain, to chafe away; of which incommodity he made complaint to the Poly Virgin : Whereupon the commanded him, faying, Go your ways, and (but them all up in a Houfe. He wondering at io strange a Command, thought the Saint fpoke those words in jeft : But when the renew'd the fame Injunction constantly, and in a serious manner, he returned amongft the Corn, where feeing great numbers of fuch Fowl devouring the Grain, he, with a loud voice, commanded them, in his Miftriffes name, to follow him: Herenpon, immediately, they all, in one Drove, follow'd him, and were that up together in a Houfe. that a certain Servant, privately, stole one of the fame Birds, which he hid, with intention to eat it. The next morning, early, the Holy Virgin went to the House, where, after she had, in a Chiding manner, reprehended the Birds for usurping that which belonged not to them, the commanded them to flie away, and not return. Immediately the whole Army of them took wing ; but being fenfible of the injury done them, they flew not away, but hovering over the Holy Virgins head, with wonderful noife, made complaint of their lofs. She hearing their impostumate Clamours, understood, by Infpiration, the cause thereof; and, after fearch made, the Offender confessed his Theft; whereupon the commanded the Bird to be reftored to her Companions. After which they all, with one confent, flew away, fo as that not any Bird of that kind was afterwards feen in that Territory. Of St. Justinian's being beheaded, and of his croffing the Seas on foot afterwards, with his Head in his hand.

St. Justinian was born of a Noble Family in Leffer Britany, where, Ap. Capafter having spent his Youth in Study and Learning, he received the grav. In Order of Priesthood. Then he travelled, and at length came to an Island, then called Lemency, now Ram/y. Afterwards he became St. David's Confessor, and a mighty Promoter of Christianity. This fee the Devil to work against him i and by that Enemy of Mankind's Infigation, three of this holy Mans Servants, who had been reprov'd by him for their Idleness, and missending their time, rusht upon him, threw him to the ground, and most cruelly cut off his Head. But in the place where the facred Head fell to the ground, a Fountain of pure Water presently flow'd, by drinking of which, in following times, many were, miraculously, refored to health.

But Miracles, greater than thefe, immediately fucceeded his death: For the Body of the bleffed Martyr prefently role, and taking the Head between the two Arms, went down to the Sea fhore, and walking thence on the Sea, paffed over to the Port called by his Name; and being arriv'd in the place where a Church is new built to his memory, it fell down, and was there buried by St. David, with fpiritaal Hymns and Canticles: In which Church our Lord vouchfafes frequently to atteft the Sanctity of his Servant by many Miracles. How S. Ositha walk'd, when dead, with her Head in her hands, and knock'd at a Church-door.

Baron ad Ct. Ofitha was Daughter of a Mercian Prince, named Frithwald, and A.D. 653.) of Wilterburga, Daughter of Pende, King of the Mercians. She was bred up in great Piety, and, through her Parents Authority, became Wife to Sighere, Companion of S. Seb. in the Kingdom of the East Anoles. But preferring the Love of a heavenly Bridegroom, be-Harcus in fore the Embraces of a King, her Husband complied with her Devo-Martyrotion; and, moreover, not only permitted her to confectate her felf to log. 7. Octob. our Lord, but bestowed on her a Village, situated near the Sea, called Chic, where building a Monastery, she enclosed her felf. And after the had fpent fome time in the fervice of God; it hapned that a Troop of Danifb Pirats landed there; who, going out of their Ships, wasted and burnt the Countrey thereabout, using all manner of Cruelty against the Christian Inhabitants. Then he who was the Captain of that impious Band, having learnt the Condition and Religious Life of the bleffed Virgin St. Ofitha, began, by Entreaties, and Prefents, to tempt her to Idolatry ; adding withal, Threats of Scourging, and other Torments, if the refuted to adore the gods which he worthipped. But the Holy Virgin despising his Flatteries, and not fearing his Threats. made fmall account of the Torments attending her. Whereupon the faid Captain, enraged at her Conftancy, and fcorn of his Idols, pronounced Sentence of Death against her, commanding her to lay down her Head to be cut off. And in the fame place where the Holy Virgin fuffered Martyrdom, a clear Fountain broke forth, which cured feveral kinds of Difeases. As soon as her Head was off, the Body pre-Capgrav. in S. O/ifently role up, and taking up the Head in the hands, by the conduct of tb4. Angels, walked firmly the straight way to the Church of the Apostles St. Peter, and St. Paul, about a quarter of a Mile diftant from the place of her fuffering: And when it was come there, it knocked at the Door with the bloody hands, as defiring it might be opened, and thereon left marks of Blood. Having done this, it fell there down to the ground ; now her Parents having heard of her death, earneftly defired, as fome recompence for their lofs, to enjoy the comfort of burying with them her headlefs Body : which being brought to them, they. Interred it in a Coffin of Lead in the Church of Aylesbury, where man ny Miracles were wrought by her Interceffion. At length, her facred Reliques, by a Divine Vision, were translated thence, back again to the Church of Chic, which Maurice, Bishop of London, reposed in a precious Coffer ; at which time the Bishop of Rochester, then present, was cured of a grievous Infirmity. The History of St. Claire, a Martyr to Chastity.

St. Claire, by Birth an Englishman, of a very Noble Defcent, and Il. Martyrolog. Gall 4. Ingular Piety, rare Chaftity. Being at years of maturity, his Parents would have matcht him to a Noble and Beautiful Virgin: But, to preferve his Virginal Purity, on his very Marriage day he ftole away into France, where he efpous'd an Hermit's life, and spent his days in strict Exercises of Piety. But the Enemy of Man's falvation could not long fupport the brightness of Divine Graces scienting in this Saint; to obscure which, he inflamed, with Lust, the Mind of a certain Noble-woman dwelling near, who immediately attempted to expugn the Chaftity of the Servant of God: But St. Claire resolutely resisted the scientific the science Lady; notwithstanding which resistance, when her Sollicitations more increased, he was forced, for his own quietness and liberty, to forfake his Monastery.

The lassivious Woman, desperately enraged with his departure, fent two Murderers in fearch of him, who, at last, found him in a poor Cottage, where he had fixed his Habitation with one onely Companion, named Cyvinus. There they first fet upon him with many opprobrious Speeches, and, at last, drawing out their Swords, they most cruelly cut off his Head, whil's he, devoutly kneeling, offered his Sacrifice of Chastity to our Lord, the Lover of pure Minds, and Patron of Innocence.

This glorious Champion of Chastity being thus victorious by Patience, presently after arose, and with his hands taking up his Head, by the affistance of Angels, carried it to a Fountain, not far distant, into which he cast it; and then carried the same back to the Oratory of his Cell; and going on a little further, towards a Village feated near the River Epta, which fince took a new Name from this glorious Martyr, he there confummated his Course, and transmitted his blessed Soul to Heaven. As for his Companion Cyrinus, he being first dangerously Ap Capwounded, was, by the Prayers of St. Clarus, wonderfully reftored to grav. in S. health. The diffinct place where this holy Martyr suffered, is faid to Claro. be in the Territory near Rouen in Normandy, near the River Seyne.

S. Decumanus does himself wash his own Head, after it was cut off.

A.D. 706. St. Decumanus, born of Noble Parents in the South-western parts of Martyr. Wales, forfsking his Countrey, the more freely to give himself to Angl. 27. Mortification, and Devotion, passed the River Severne upon a Hurdle August. of Rods, and retired himself into a mountainous vast Solitude covered in vit. S. with Shrubs and Bryars, where he spent his Life in the repose of Contemplation, till in the end he was stain by a Murderer. Decumatemplation, till in the end he was stain by a Murderer.

But it fo hapned, that when his Head was cut from his Body, the Trunk raifing it felf up, took the Head, which it carried from the place where he was flain, to a Spring not far off, which flowed with a most chrystal Water, in which, with the Hands, it washed the Blood away; which Spring, in memory of the Saint, is, to this day, called St. Decumanfis's Spring, near to which place the Body, together with the Head, was Honourably buried by the neighbouring Inhabitants. S. Ruadanus, and S. Finnian, Counter-Miracle one another.

Ct. Ruadanus obtained this special favour of God, that from a certain J Tree in his Cell (Tilia it's call'd) from the hour of Sun-fetting till Nine a Clock the next Day, dropt a Liquor of a peculiar tafte, pleafing to every Palate; which then fill'd a Veffel, which fufficed for a Dinnet for him and all his Brotherhood : and from Nine a Clock to Sun-fetting it dropt half a Veffel full, with which Strangers were entertained. Upon the fame of this Miracle many of the Saints came to St. Finnian, defiring him to go along with them to that place, and perfuade Ruadannesso live a Life common with others. St Finnian went with them, and when they came to the Tree that gave the admirable Liquor, he fign'd it with the fign of the Crois, and after Nine a Clock the Liquor ceas'd to flow. St. Ruadanus hearing that his Master S. Finnian, and several others were come to him, he called his Servant, and bid him prepare a Dinner for his Guests; who going to the Tree, he found the Vessel that shood under it wholly empty, and told his Master how it was; who bid him carry his Veffel to the Fountain, and fill it to the top with Water, which when he had done, prefently the Water was changed into the tafte of that Liquor which dropt from the Tree. Moreover, he found a Fifh of great bigness in the Fountain, and carried all to the Man of God; who commanded him to fet these Gifts before St. Finnian. He feeing what was done, Croffed the Liquor, and it was changed again into common Water, and faid, Why is this Liquor of a falle Name given unto me? The Disciples of St. Finnian seeing all this, desired their Mafter to go to the Fountain, and Crofs it, as he had done the Tree: But St. Finnian answered them, My Brethren, do not grieve this holy Man, for if he go before us to the next Bog, he will be able to do the fame that be did in the Tree, and the Water, namely, make (uch Liquor flow thence. Wherefore St. Finnian, and the reft, all entreated St. Ruadanus, that he would live as others did; which he yielded to, and he held the common course of living.

St. Augustin's Miracle.

Ct. Augustin disputing with the British Bishops about the Observation Father O of Easter, and arguing, That they did not keep it in its due time : Creffy's When the Britains, after a long Difputation, would not be moved to Churchgive their Affent, but would follow their own Traditions, St. Augustin 1.13. c.18. brought the Difpute to this Conclusion, faying, Let us befeech our Lord. who makes Brethren of one mind in the House of his Father, that he would B. 1.2. c.2. vouch [afe, by Celeftial Signs, to make known unto us, which of the Traditions is to be followed, and which is the right Path leading to his Kingdom. Let some Person be here produced among us; and he by whole Cares be shall be cured, let that Man's Faith and Practice be believed acceptable to God. and to be followed by Men. This Proposition being accepted, with much ado, a blind Man was brought before them, and was first offered to the British Bishops, but by their Endeavors and Ministry found no Cure and Help. At length Auftin, compelled thereto by just Neceffity, kneeled down, and prayed to God to reftore the blind Man his fight ; whereupon, immediately, the blind Man (upon his Prayer) received fight, and Auftin was proclaimed by all a true Preacher of Celeftial Light.

St. Keyna turns Serpents into Stones.

THE Holy British Virgin St. Keyna was Illustrious for her Birth. L being the Daughter of Braganus, Prince of that Province of The flate Wales, which, from him, was called Brecknockshire; but more Illustri-Affairs in ous for her Zeal to preferve her Chastity, for which the was call'd, in this Island the British Tongue Keynwayre, that is, Keyna the Virgin. When the under Bricame to ripe years, many Noble Persons sought her in Marriage, but tith Kings. the utterly forfook that state, having confectated her Virginity to our Lord by a perpetual Vow. At length the determined to forfake her Countrey, and find out fome defart place where the might attend to Contemplation; wherefore directing her Journey beyond Severn, and coming to certain woody places, the requested the Prince of that Countrey, that the might be permitted to ferve God in that Solitude. The Prince was willing to grant her Request, only he told her, The place did fo fwarm with Serpents, that neither Man nor Beafts could inhabit in it. To which the replied, That her Trust was fixed in the Name and Allistance of Almighty God, and therefore the doubted not to drive all that poylonous brood cut of that Region. Hereupon the place was readily granted to the Holy Virgin, who prostrating her felf to God in fervent Prayer, obtain'd of him to change all the Serpents and Vipers there into Stones; fo as to this day the Stones, in that Region, refemble the windings of Serpents through all the Fields and Villages, as if they had been fo fram'd by the hand of the Engraver.

The History of St. David, and his Miracles.

The flate THE King of the Region, call'd Ceretica, travelling to Dunetia, of Church I met, by the way, a Religious Virgin; call'd Nonnita, of great Affairs in this Ifland Beauty ; which he lufting after, by Violence deflowr'd ; She, hereby. under the conceiv'd a Son, but neither before nor after had ever knowledge of Britifh any Man. The King thus Father of St. David, is call'd Xanthus; and Kings. P. his Mother, by fome, nam'd Melaria; others, Nonmita. His Eminency 115. London Prin- was predicted by St. Patrick long before: For that Saint being in the Valley of Rolina, in the Province of Dimeta (North-West Wales) mesed by N. Thompf, ditating on his Miffion into Ireland, had a Revelation by an Angel, That 1687, after Thirty Years a Child (hould be born in that Province, which (hould give a great Luftre to that Countrey. And his Nativity was uther'd in by another Miracle: For when Gildas Albenius was, from the Pulpit. teaching a great Congregation, on the fudden he became dumb, and unable to speak, but afterwards broke forth into these words : A Holy Woman, call'd Nonnita, now prefent in this Church, is great with Child, and shall shortly be brought to Bed of a Son, full replenisht with Grace. It was in regard to him that I was hindred from speaking, by a Divine Power restraining my Tungue. This Child fooll be of so eminent Sanctity, that none in these our Parts are comparable to him; I will surrender this Region to him, who will from his Infancy, by degrees, increase in Grace and Sanctuy: An Angel, God's Melfenger, bath revealed this unto me. This Holy Child, not long after born, being baptiz'd, and growing up in Grace, became the first Bishop of Menevia, to which place he tranflated the Bishoprick of Caerleon, and which, from him, was called St. Davids.

The State Affairs under the British Kings p. 138.

Now in the Year of Grace 519, a British Synod being affembled, on of Church the occasion of the detestable Herefie of the Pelagians, Paulin, a Bishop with whom Sr. David in his Youth had been educated, earneftly perfuaded the Fathers to fend for St. David in the Name of the Synod, who was lately confectated Bifhop by the Patriarch, to afford his affiftance to God's Church now in great danger; but could not prevail with him to forfake his Contemplations, until, at laft, two Holy Men, Daniel, and Dubritius, by their Authority brought him to the Synod: And then all the Fathers there affembled, enjoin'd St. David to preach. He commanded a Child, which had lately been reftor'd to Life by him. to fpread a Napkin under his Feet, and standing upon it, he began to expound the Gofpel and the Law to the Auditory All the while he continued, a fnow white Dove descending from Heaven, fate upon his shoulder, and the Earth, on which he ftood, rais'd it felf under him, till it became a Hill, from whence his Voice, like a Trumpet, was clearly heard and understood by all both far, and near: On the top of which Now concerning the fame Paulin or Paulins that fent for David to the Synod, we find that St. David, as foon as he was promoted to the Prieft- 1b. p. 141. hood, went to Paulins, a Difciple of St. German; and that in a certain Island he led a Holy Life acceptable to God, and that St. David liv'd with him many years, and follow'd his Instructions. Paulinus, at last, by extreme pains in his Eyes, loft the use of them; whereupon calling his Disciples together, he defired that one after another they would look upon his Eyes, and fay a Prayer or Benediction on them: But receiving no Benefit thereby, David faid to him, Father, Command me not to look you in the Face ; for Ten Years are past since I fudied the Scriptures with you, and in all that time I never had the boldness to look you in the Face. Paulins, admiring his Humility, faid, Since it is fo, it will (uffice, if by touching mine Eyes, thou pronounce a Benediction on them. Prefently therefore, as foon as he had toucht them, Sight was reftored to them. When St. David came to dye, our Lord Jesus vouchfafed him his Prefence, as he had promis'd by his Angel, to the infinite Confolation of the Holy Father: And St. Kentigers faw a multitude of Angels conducting him into the Joy of our Lord; and our Lord 16. p. 146 himfelf, at the Entrance of Paradile, crowning him with Glory and Honour.

Ct. Patrick, alias Socher, the great Apostle of Ireland, in A. D. 261. Was born in the South-West Coast of Britany among the Dimetor in the Province called Pembrokesbire. His Father was Calipburnius, a 17. Mart. British Priest or Deacon; his Mother Concha, the Sister of St. Martin Bishop of Tours. The Village where he was born, was called Bannava, where anciently Gyants are faid to have dwelt.

But Socher, afterwards called Patrick, was, in the Sixteenth year of Gluston in his Age, led away Captive in an Incursion made by the Picts into Patricio. England, and fold to a Noble-man in the Northern parts of Ireland.
